

WAS IT A GOOD MARRIAGE OF MISS WERNER AND MR. McCUNE LAST EVENING

Alleged That Salisbury Was Never Elected.

CHARGES OF TRICKERY.

HOW REPUBLICANS OF STATE WERE TURNED DOWN.

A respectable number of Utah Republicans have become convinced that the party in this state has been deceived by Mark Hanna. Some of them also believe that Hanna himself was the victim of a confidence game played by Colonel Lannan and his three aides at Philadelphia.

When the announcement was made that the national executive committee had administered the Salisbury crimp to the Utah party by electing Colonel Lannan's man as national committee man from this state, the distress of local Republicans was mixed with much astonishment. It was regarded as inexplicable that the national committee should promote discord and demoralization in Utah by recognizing the representative of a very small and unpopular faction, in the face of the vigorous protest from nine of the twelve delegates and alternates that represented the party at Philadelphia. But the announcement was accepted as authoritative and final, and beyond low growls of disapproval the opposition was carried no farther.

Salisbury Not Elected.

But subsequent developments aroused suspicion, and investigation led to conviction that Salisbury has never been regularly selected by the national executive committee as committeeman from Utah, but that the party has been made the victim of trickery and fraud. The investigation referred to has been made by several prominent Republicans, one of whom was at Philadelphia. This inquiry disclosed these facts:

Salisbury was never elected national committeeman from Utah by the national executive committee.

No meeting of the executive committee was held on Friday, July 22, the day upon which Salisbury's posters announced his selection.

The national executive committee has not yet been appointed, and there was no committee meeting. At 5 o'clock p. m. on that day Mark Hanna assured a Utah delegate that the Utah contest would not be taken up until some time later.

A Lannan Discovery.

It has developed that, so far as can be learned, the only newspaper man in the United States that discovered that there had been a meeting of the national executive committee and that Salisbury had been elected, was the widely-known editor of the local Hanna organ, who was on the spot, and that his telegram announcing the fact was the only basis for the statement that such action had been taken. Philadelphia papers, in their accounts of the proceedings of that day, contained no reference to the executive committee, except to state that the name of Mark Hanna, that the committee had not been appointed. It is true that Hanna announced the names of three men for the Utah delegation, but the committee was not constituted until after the meeting, and the committee was not authorized to decide important party matters that are possessed by the delegates who opposed Salisbury.

No One Attended.

No Utah delegate who has yet returned attended the alleged meeting. They all state that they "understood" such a meeting was held, this understanding being based upon Colonel Lannan's announcement. Some of them seem to think that there was a meeting of the full national committee, instead of the executive committee, but the new national committee has not met, and the only meeting of the executive committee was for the purpose of closing up matters connected with the last campaign. The old committee would certainly have no authority to fill vacancies on the new committee. It is quite certain that not one of the delegates who opposed Salisbury's appointment was invited to be present at any meeting, and that no such action has been given to their protest.

Selected By a Trick.

As stated above, these facts have been brought out by an investigation on the part of local Republicans, who are now convinced that Salisbury was selected by trickery and fraud, and that he has never been regularly chosen to represent Utah on the national committee. Their conviction is that Mark Hanna, Senator Shoup and Joe Manley usurped the authority of the committee and decided to turn down the Utah Republicans in the interest of Colonel Lannan's man, Shoup, as well known, is Lannan's willing tool in everything, and Manley was a close friend of the late James G. Blaine, who was Salisbury's uncle by marriage.

It is believed here that the story about the $50,000 checks from Wells, Kearns and Looney may have had something to do with the capture of Hanna by the schemers. It is thought that the possibility of such contributions in the event that the man was selected was dangled before Hanna's nose as a bait, and that Marcus snapped it up. Of course, no such contributions will be made, and if it is true that such inducements were held out, the national chairman was victimized.

NOT SPOKEN FOR YEARS.

Silent Husband and Wife, Who Live Together, Go to Court.

(Exchange.)

It was thought the mystery of the "Divided House" of Italy Hill in Yates county, New York, would be revealed when both the queer tenants appeared in court recently, one against the other, but not a word would either say that might reward the search. For a quarter of a century Frank Chas. and his wife Helen have lived in the house, and all that time not a word have they exchanged. After a quarrel the husband placed a stove in the dining room and took up his residence there, while his wife took the kitchen. On the threshold of one of the two bedrooms, upstairs, Frank never placed his foot. Once a week he would kneel before the door and push some money underneath. When the husband and wife met on the stairway they looked straight ahead.

CADET ROBERT MORRIS GOES TO JOIN BATTLESHIP IOWA

Having completed the course of study at the United States Naval academy at Annapolis and wearing the blue of an officer in the service of his country, Robert Morris yesterday returned home for a brief visit with his parents. From here he goes to San Francisco to join the battleship Iowa, to which he has been assigned to duty as one of the junior officers.

It was four years ago that the young man, then in his second year at the Salt Lake high school, entered into the competitive examination for a cadetship, offered by Representative Allen. He passed both the highest mental and physical examination of all the applicants, and was duly appointed Utah representative to the place. Last month he completed the course and was graduated with honors, he being number 22 in a class of sixty. He goes into active service at once and from the efficient work done in his academy course Utah may expect to hear about him in the course of the wars that may follow.

Even in his academy days, Mr. Morris had a taste of war and of active service. He served on Admiral Miller's flagship, Philadelphia, for two years during the war in the Pacific. He also had the honor of being in charge of the squadron that raised the flag at Honolulu.

He is 21 years old and a son of ex-County Selectman Joseph R. Morris. Fifteen of his classmates passed through with him on their way to the Philippines.

It is possible that the young Salt Lake may be called upon before long to do some fighting in Chinese waters.

There are things which appall even the stoutest hearts.

Yellow Flag at Seuffert Home Had to Come Down.

HOW MISTAKE WAS MADE

DR. KING HAD PLACE QUARANTINED ON SUSPICION.

The two Seuffert brothers, who live at 350 South Seventh West street threatened for a time on Friday afternoon and on Saturday morning to not only clean out the whole health department but special quarantine officer, Dr. Gleason, as well. It is said that Fred Seuffert threatened all kinds of law suits for a time and that he is hardly cooled off yet.

The trouble commenced at 5 o'clock Friday afternoon when an employee of the health department came down and nailed up in a conspicuous place on the premises, the yellow flag which is the sign of smallpox. There was quite a scene. Seuffert came out and wanted to know why the flag was being put up. He is said to have used some very strong language and a lot of it. The officer explained to him that the flag was being put up because Dr. King, the health commissioner, having heard that smallpox existed in the family and that Mrs. Seuffert had the first symptoms of it, had ordered the house quarantined.

But the man became enraged and made many threats. He would not have the flag up. However, it was put up and it remained up until yesterday morning.

Had Been Exposed.

He said last night that Mrs. Seuffert had been exposed to the case of the Larson girl on Pitt street. She became sick and thinking that it might be smallpox, called Dr. Bower. As he did not want to expose his other patients to the disease by attending Mrs. Seuffert, he asked Dr. Gleason to take the case. He also said that Dr. King, who was just leaving for Minneapolis, Dr. King at once wrote an order for the house to be quarantined. This Dr. Gleason said was done on the report that was made by the family itself, which called Dr. Bower and thought that Mrs. Seuffert had the disease.

He said that in reality she did show symptoms which were the same as the first symptoms of smallpox. But he found as her case developed that she was merely sick with a cold.

Dr. Gleason said that the flag was put up as in all cases of the same kind and that in this instance it was done on the suspicions of the family.

Whether or not Mrs. Seuffert will begin a suit for damages as she has been intimated is not known. Dr. King will be away for some days and service could not be had until he returns.

SHORT LOCALS.

NEW BRICK COMPANY.—The brick making business of James H. Kirk was broken up last night. The company is known as the Kirk Brick company. Simon Bamberger is president; James H. Kirk is secretary and treasurer; and Joshua B. Bean and John S. Critchlow are the other directors. The company's capital stock is fixed at $10,000 in shares.

CELEBRATE CAMBRIAN DAY.—Cambrian day will be celebrated at Salt Lake on Wednesday, July 13, under the auspices of the Cambrian association of Salt Lake City. Every body is invited, and there will be special train service to accommodate the crowd. An interesting program will be given, and the day will be arranged, which will add to the pleasure of the occasion. The prizes to be awarded will be donated by the merchants of the city and are well worth contesting for.

RANCHERS IN TROUBLE.—Land and Water Commissioner Westfield yesterday made complaint against Ernest Timony against Ernest Speirs and Adam Speirs, charging them with violating the law permitting their horses to graze on the waters of City Creek canyon. A similar complaint was made against John Edwards and James Anderson, ranchers in Parley's canyon, who have refused, the commissioner declares, to prevent their horses from wading the canyon creek. The cases will be heard in the police court early in the week.

HORSES WERE TURNED BACK.—On Friday Patrolman Phineas Young learned that a band of eight horses was to be driven down Parley's canyon from Summit county toward this city, and he was on duty to prevent them from reaching the canyon water. After waiting at the summit the horses finally came to sight. The patrolman was within his horse at the time, but he soon overcame the difficulty by catching one of the unruly animals and procuring small piece of rope for a bridle, mounted the horse and commenced to drive the horses off toward Alexander gulch. It was a difficult undertaking, but Young succeeded at last in leading the animals into the prescribed cattle trail in Emileigh canyon. The offending horsemen had been urged to break the law, and if the action can be made to stick the abettors will probably be prosecuted along with the herders.

WILD MAN CAUGHT.

Covered With Hair and With Enormous Talons.

(Louisville Courier-Journal.) A wild man was captured in the hills near Plum Fork, Ky., recently. He had been seen a number of times by different persons, but all efforts to capture him had proved fruitless until Louis Brown, a farmer, set two of the strongest traps at a cave where the man had been sleeping. He was caught in both traps by his nose and right hand. When Brown found him he was trying to loose the trap from his nose, but when he saw Brown he set up a most dismal howl and attempted to run. He was released and confined in a stable belonging to William Rice. For several days he would not speak, but he was finally induced to talk. He said his name was Levi Brewer, and that he was raised near Warfield, on the Big Sandy. He appeared frightened when strange men approached, but quieted down when he finds they do not intend to hurt him. The nails on his hands and feet are like the talons of an eagle, and he is completely covered with hair. He took the correspondent that he had supported himself by fishing and catching game with his hands.

First Club Room for Automobiles.

(Boston Daily Transcript.)

The clubs in the Boston neighborhood, some of them, will begin to make place for the "auto." First to take any active steps is the Eastern Yacht club, which has a fine club house at Maryhead Neck. This club has had a bicycle room, with the engineer to serve as caretaker, and now it is planning to build a twelve club members have automobiles, there has been a demand for a place and the club has decided to build a room, under cover while its owner was at the club, and another of the carriage sheds has been put up. Electric lights have been provided and an electric plug has been set in the wall so that electric carriages might be recharged there.

Alphabetical Promotion.

(London Chronicle.) In last week's Civilian there is a notice of nine recent promotions in the war office. The surnames of seven of the newly appointed men begin with the letters E, C, or D, while F and K claim the eighth and ninth men. This, of course, may be a coincidence, but it is possible that the explanation given by a depositor in the Postoffice Savings bank is correct. The man who had taken place in his surname from Watkins to Atkinson. "I did it before I joined the army," on the advice of a friend in the regiment who was in the know. He said that our colonel, in making promotions, always went straight down the alphabet, never got as far as W. Perhaps for the same reason, all the war office clerks in the list have surnames, and below K there is no choice.

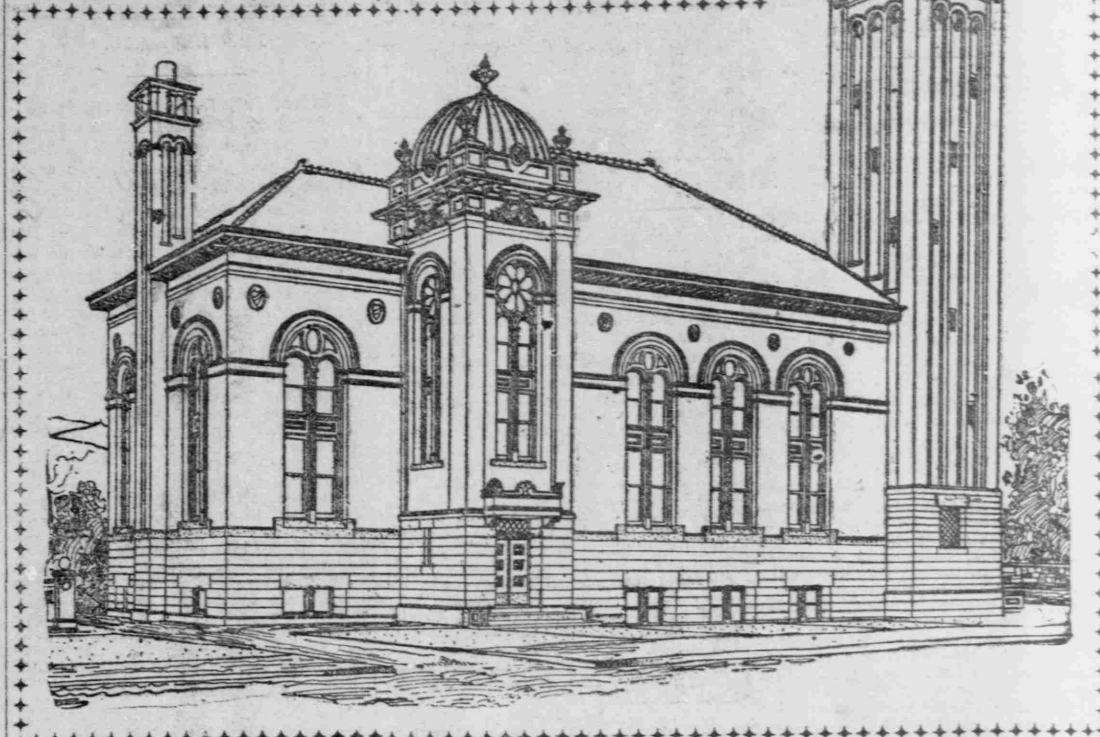

NEW MORMON TABERNACLE AT LEHI

The accompanying cut represents the beautiful Mormon tabernacle now in course of construction in the progressive little city of Lehi, the center of the sugar industry. The style of architecture used is the Italian renaissance and the new structure promises to be one of the handsomest meeting houses in Utah outside of the capital.

The material to be used in the superstructure of the new tabernacle is red sandstone and pressed brick. The dimensions are 76x118; the most striking feature of the church will be the high tower on the front, a tower differing from anything in the line now to be found in the state.

The auditorium on the first floor will be 45 feet in clear to the ceiling, and about three sides of the room will run a beautiful gallery. The total seating capacity of the tabernacle is not yet known, but it is intended to be sufficient to accommodate the Mormon people of the growing little city for many years to come. The basement will be fitted up to be used for the Sunday school.

The cost of the building will be not far from $20,000. The foundation and the concrete footings are now in and work on the building will be pushed rapidly from this time on so that it will be under roof in the fall. R. Kletting of this city is the architect.

BOY BECOMES A THIEF

Arrested For Burglarizing Diamond Coal Co.'s Office.

HE MADE A CONFESSION

BROKE INTO A DESK AND STOLE $52 AND SOME CHECKS.

A desk in the Diamond Coal company's office at 126 South Main street was broken into about 1 o'clock yesterday morning and a cash box containing $52 in money and some checks were stolen. Later in the day a sixteen-year-old boy who gave his name as Will McKay was arrested by Detective Sheets and Sergeant Janey and $30 of the cash and the checks were found on him. He confessed his guilt and told where he had spent some of the money and where he had thrown the cash box.

On Friday night the clerk, Frank Rinders, left the cash box containing the money in the office desk, instead of putting it in the vault as he was told by the manager, Mr. O'Brien. Yesterday morning when Mr. O'Brien looked for the box it was not in its proper place and when he went to the desk he discovered that the lid had been broken open and the box was gone. He immediately notified the police.

They had an interview with the clerk and secured from him the clue to the guilty party. Young Rinders told the officers that McKay had been in the office just before closing time Friday and had seen the box in the desk.

Confessed His Guilt.

The officers soon after located the lad on Second South street. When he was arrested he made a confession and told the officers that he had spent $10 at a dry goods store and had thrown the cash box behind some barrels in the Rio Grande Western round house.

An investigation proved that his statements were true. The box was found with the lid pried open and in it were some valueless papers and a 10 cent piece.

Six dollars of the cash could not be found, but the boy denies knowing any one who had the money.

The building in which the coal company's office is located is occupied in the rear by the Pacific Express company and the young thief entered the building and stole the money after the front doors had been opened by the express company. The man who opens up was there at the time, but he did not see the thief. He said that he had seen the boy enter the building and that he had seen him leave it a week until he was arrested yesterday.

AT THE SALT PALACE.

Vaudeville Performances Are Showing Marked Improvement.

The vaudeville performances in the Salt Palace theatres have shown marked improvement during the past week. The audiences have been larger and more appreciative, and there is reason to believe that the popularity of the theatres has been well established. Up to the past week one theatre seating 350 people was sufficient to accommodate the attending audiences, but now it requires two houses, having an aggregate seating capacity of 1,000, to properly accommodate the crowds.

One of the acts which has attracted attention during the past week was Lewis and Lake in their well presented sketch, "The Marriage of the Chinese and the Coon," in which two little pickaninies proved to be an entertaining feature. Roberts Smilax and company, grotesque dancers, proved to be a great drawing card, and their trained bulldogs have pleased and delighted everybody. Mrs. Thelma continues to delight her audiences with her splendid violin renditions, and her sketch, "The Soul of the Violin," wherein she is assisted by her mother, was both novel and unique. Lovers of genuine colored singing have revelled in the splendid singing of the Orlanos, a notably strong colored quartette. The dancing of one of its members has also proved to be a pleasing feature.

The bill for the coming week is spicy, brisk and new. Lewis and Lake present their great novelty, "The Trane and the Gay Soubrette," a well written sketch, introducing novel and entertaining situations. "Sport," the wonderful trained bulldog accompanied by Roberts Smilax and company, will continue to amuse and delight visitors to the palace. The Orlanos quartette

PROTECTING CITY'S RIGHTS TO UTAH LAKE RESERVOIR

Mainly for the purpose of protecting the city's rights under its appropriation of water from the right to draw down the level of Utah lake twenty inches below compromise point, work has been started on the project of dredging the river bed and straightening the channel, an undertaking that is deemed necessary to be accomplished before the city can realize the full benefits from the lake as a storage reservoir. The work was commenced on Friday by a force of fifteen teams in charge of one of Engineer Kelsey's foremen.

It is not thought probable that very much work will be done this season, only enough likely to hold the city's location good as against the adverse appropriation of the Jordan Narrows power plant company. The proper way to this work is, in the estimation of Engineer Kelsey, to call for bids and let a contract to parties having dredging machinery. This method is much cheaper, compared with ten labor, but the total cost of the work has not yet been estimated. There will be nearly ten miles of dredging and channel straightening to do before the plans come to fruition, but this will be a matter for the future to care for, when the city is in better condition financially.

The authority for commencing this work was granted to the city engineer by the mayor and the finance committee at a meeting held the other evening when the city attorney joined in the engineer's recommendations.

Probably Guilty.

Mr. Phoodle, who was taking a drive with his wife, turned sharply to her and said: "I wish you wouldn't grab the dashboard every time the horse starts up."

"I know, but the emphasis you put on the 'dash,'" she replied, "that you had a good deal stronger word in your mind."

ABOUT PERSPIRATION.

It Is Almost Peculiar to Men, Monkeys and Horses.

(Youth's Companion.)

Perspiration is almost peculiar to men, monkeys and horses. Horses sweat all over the body, and so do human beings, but monkeys, it is said, sweat only on the hands, feet and face. The purpose of perspiration is mainly to cool the body by its evaporation, although it is generally believed that it is a means of getting rid of the waste products of the body. The cooling of the body is effected by evaporation from the lungs, as we see in the case of a panting dog.

The amount of perspiration varies greatly, according to the temperature of the surrounding air, the condition of the body, the degree of exercise taken, the amount of fluids imbibed, etc. The average amount of perspiration is thought to be about two pints a day, but this, of course, may increase in hot weather.

In damp weather evaporation from the skin is lessened, and so one seems to perspire more profusely than in dry weather; but this is only apparent, for really perspiration is lessened when the atmosphere is charged with moisture.

Hyperhidrosis is the medical term used to denote an abnormal increase in perspiration. This increase may be general or confined to a particular part of the body, as the hands or the feet. Profuse sweating is very common in cases of diabetes, in excess of ordinary perspiration, and in certain nervous disorders. Sudden emotion may cause increased perspiration.

The opposite condition, a great diminution or absence of sweating (anhidrosis) is much rarer, and occurs usually in connection with some disease of the skin. Sometimes the character of the secretion is changed, and cases of black, blue, gray, yellow or red sweating have been described.

The treatment of profuse perspiration depends upon the cause. Tonics, cold or cool bathing, especially salt bathing, temperance, and the use of astringents are useful in cases dependent upon general debility or obesity. Spraying or sponging the body with brandy and water, or vinegar and water, or a solution of tannin or of boric acid is useful.

Certain drugs which have a tendency to diminish perspiration are sometimes employed to reduce the night sweats of consumptives when these are so excessive as to weaken the already debilitated patient and to prevent much needed sleep.

Pictures Sent by Wire.

The latest marvel that has been worked by electricity is the telephotograph. By means of this instrument a drawing, letter, photograph, diagram or any drawn or printed matter may be telegraphed to any distance over a single wire. When a message is to be sent by this system it is simply drawn on a piece of paper, or on a thin metal sheet and placed in a transmitter. A switch is then thrown open and away the message goes. The wire stretches over hill and valley, and another electric machine draws a perfect reproduction of the message on wood or metal. If the message is received on paper two copies are made at the same time. If more copies are desired the machine will engrave it directly on zinc or copper instead of writing it on
